Southwest Advocacy Association ("SWAA") is an independent community based organisation that has provided advocacy and information to people with disabilities throughout south west Victoria since 1993. Rural Access is a Program funded by the Department of Human Services that aims to increase community participation and inclusion opportunities for people with disabilities.

As part of the Active Participation Strategy, Southwest Advocacy and Rural Access have developed the Active Participation Register ("APR") for people with disabilities in Warrnambool, Moyne and Corangamite Shires. The APR is currently managed by SWAA.

SWAA may forward information that your organisation provides to the Register to APR participants. APR participants may then contact your organisation for further information. SWAA is not able to disclose the details of APR participants to any other party without the participant's consent. SWAA's Privacy Policy is available upon request. This project is not for profit and no fees or charges apply to individuals or organisations that participate. A copy of the APR Management Guidelines, which includes a grievance resolution procedure is also available upon request.
